

Contact:

Courtney Reigh, Linnihan Foy Advertising
612-238-3007 • courtney@linnihanfoy.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DEFENSE INDUSTRY VETERAN KEITH TAYLOR JOINS RANGE SYSTEMS

Taylor will play critical role in moving Range Systems forward in international and domestic markets

NEW HOPE, MINN. (Oct. 16, 2018) – Range Systems, an industry leader in ballistic rubber commercial range systems, has hired Keith Taylor as Managing Director of International Markets. Taylor, a longtime defense industry veteran, is charged with developing Range Systems' international vision and capabilities.

"Keith is well known in our industry, for good reason," said Charlie Baker, Founder and CEO, Range Systems. "He'll play an integral role in our growth strategy, and we're thrilled to have him here."

As part of developing Range Systems' international capabilities, Taylor will collaborate with international and domestic teams to orchestrate business development, open new markets and facilitate mergers and acquisitions worldwide.

Taylor's executive leadership in the defense industry is extensive. Prior to joining Range Systems, he served as Managing Director in the UK for Cubic Defense Applications in Europe. He has a wealth of experience in international markets, previously holding senior management positions in the United Kingdom, Middle East and in Southeast Asia.

For more information on the products and services provided by Range Systems, email sales@range-systems.com or visit range-systems.com.

About Range Systems

Manufacturer of Dura-Panel and Dura-Bloc, the original ballistic rubber products, Range Systems designs and builds custom shooting ranges as well as realistic and dynamic training environments for commercial, military, law enforcement, private, forensic, and testing markets. Dedicated to providing unsurpassed, responsive service, Range Systems offers shooting supplies and services worldwide.